

Result in sight for debate over Pumicestone jet skis

6/11/12 - Cal Journal

THE jet ski debate raged through 2011.

Some people believe jet skis should be banned from Pumicestone Passage while others say they do no harm and have a place in the waterway.

This year we should expect to see a result.

More than 350 residents completed an online survey to speak out about waterway management issues and the use of jet skis.

Sunshine Coast Regional Council launched the survey in November to identify issues and put an end to the debate about whether to ban jet skis and how to manage their use.

A council representative said there was no plan to ban jet skis at this point in time.

The representative said council would now involve Maritime Safety Queensland to work on an outcome.

We will keep you posted.
